More information about the Oeconomicum

Building on the successful cooperation between the Schwarz-Schütte Foundation and ingenhoven architects, our team extends the Oeconomicum of the Heinrich-Heine-University in Düsseldorf by adding a new building. The main building designed by ingenhoven architects was completed in 2010 and has become the new landmark of the campus. Regarding the extension, it is particularly planned to install new workspaces. The sustainable, gently curved building is situated next to the university lake which had previously been inaccessible. It creates extra places for students to meet and greet.
